

RADFORD COLLEGE

20 November 2008

Dear Members of the Radford Community

Appointment of New Principal

The Board is delighted to announce the appointment of Mr Phillip Heath as the new Principal of Radford College.

Phillip is currently the Head of School of St Andrew's Cathedral School, Sydney, a position he has held for the last 14 years. He is an outstanding principal and educator and was the stand out candidate in a very strong field for the position of Principal of Radford College.

He holds a Bachelor of Arts (Hons), a Diploma of Education, and a Master of Arts (Hons). In his early years as an educator, he taught at Trinity Grammar, Sydney, and King's School Ely, UK, before becoming deputy headmaster at William Clarke College in Kellyville, Sydney.

Amongst many external achievements, Phillip has been a member of the NSW Board of Studies for the last 8 years. He is a keen historian, writer and director of musical theatre and drama. He is married to Alison, and has a son at Sydney University and a daughter who will join Year 11 at Radford in 2010.

Phillip will take up the position on 1 July 2009. Mr John Leyshon will be Acting Principal for the first 6 months of 2009, until Phillip commences.

The process of finding the right person has involved many of us in the Radford community over the last few months, and I would like to take this opportunity of thanking all those involved for their efforts and input into this outstanding outcome.

Early in the new year, we will write to you further about meeting Phillip, his transition, and future plans for Radford.

Yours sincerely

Ian Morison
